Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 11.—Wilbur Legett, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., now living here, volunteered the statement today that he was the traveling salesman mentioned by Asa G. Candler in the statements published by Mrs. Onezima De Bouchel, involved in alleged reports of visits to her rooms in Atlanta during a confederate reunion in 1919.

"The whole story attributed to Candler is a lie," declared Legett. "It is a fabrication of scandal mongers. There is no finer woman on earth than Mrs. De Bouchel."

Legett said that he had not seen Mrs. DeBouchel for more than a year, the last meeting being in New York when Mrs. Legett and he met her at a hotel prior to her departure for Paris. The first information of the reported charge against her character, he said, came to him yesterday on reading a local newspaper.

"I met Mrs. DeBouchel in Atlanta on the first day of the confederate reunion, some time in the fall of 1919, having been introduced by a young lady from Virginia," he said. "On reading the newspaper statement of Mrs. DeBouchel that Candler accused her of receiving attentions of two men in her room, I realized that I must be the salesman referred to."

"Mr. Candler and I were the only two men who could be mentioned as spending time with Mrs. DeBouchel during that convention, and she was constantly in my company, she being chaperone general of the convention and I entertaining delegates, and there were always several young ladies present."

"But never at a single time was she with me alone. She always conducted herself as a lady and never gave any man an opportunity for making unconventional advances."

Legett said the charges were astounding to any one who knew Mrs. DeBouchel, and that he was prepared to go to Atlanta at any time to "defend the honor of an insulted woman, such as becomes a southern gentleman."

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—A deep sympathy for a lonely old man whose children had grown away from him, and a companionship I craved rather than love, inspired my engagement to Asa G. Candler, Sr."

Mrs. Onezima DeBouchel, beautiful New Orleans divorcee, whose engagement to the Atlanta capitalist had been abruptly terminated, made this statement here today while awaiting the arrival of her attorney from the Louisiana city for a conference relative to charges of indiscretion brought against her by Candler.

"I do not want a single penny of the Candler money," she indignantly asserted, "but they will have to pay and pay dearly for their combine to wreck my reputation with insults."

In a public statement yesterday Mrs. De Bouchel said Candler had informed her it would be impossible for him to marry her as he had received

Be Dry in Few Years

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Victoria, B. C., Oct. 11.—In a few years India, with a native population of 200,000,000, will be dry, according to Dr. J. N. Anandiah, an Indian advocate of prohibition, who passed through here on his way from Calcutta to the United States to study the working of the 18th amendment and the Volstead Act.

"It would say that only 9.2 per cent of the native population of India drink intoxicating beverages," Dr. Anandiah remarked.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—With only one victory in four starts chalked up at Baltimore, members of the St. Paul team, winners of the American Association pennant, who arrived here with their opponents today, hoped for a better showing in the remaining games of the "Little World Series" with Baltimore, International League champions, which begins tomorrow.

CLEAR CASE?

An alleged statement by Raymond Schneider, 22, above, is said to have involved Clifford Hayes, 19, in the slaying of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall at New Brunswick, N. J. Hayes has been arrested and Schneider is held as a material witness.

DETECTIVE WHO GOT CONFESSION ATTACK-ED BY ANGRY CROWD*Citizens Refuse to Accept
New Angle of Double Murder.

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Frank P. Kirby, a Middlesex county detective, credited with having obtained the statement from Raymond Schneider on which Clifford Hayes, 19 years old, was charged with the slaying of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Episcopal church of St. John, the Evangelist, and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, was attacked by a group of indignant citizens here early today.

Bombarded with bricks Kirby escaped unhurt by locking himself in the baggage room at the Pennsylvania station. Later he was surrounded by armed policemen and escorted to police headquarters, while the crowd, which had shown its resentment over the arrest of Hayes, dispersed.

Kirby was met by the group of citizens as he emerged from the station on his return from Somerville, where he had sought unsuccessfully to obtain a confession from Hayes. The group included several members of the committee which had obtained the offer of a $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills.

Members of the crowd protested angrily to Kirby against the arrest of Hayes, declaring they considered it a "frame up" to quiet the indignation of citizens and soothe an aroused governor, by making it appear that the mystery had been cleared.

Surrounded by Crowd.
Kirby retorted with equal candor at first, at the same time walking rapidly away from the railway station in the direction of police headquarters. Before he had proceeded far, he found himself surrounded by the crowd which pressed closer and closer to him.

He tried to keep straight ahead, but suddenly found his way blocked by angry and excited men. He looked around, decided the crowd was thinnest behind him and turned and ran in that direction. The crowd ran after him with threats of tar and feathers.

The pursuit led past a pile of brick. Many in the crowd stopped long enough to get an arm full to hurl after the fleeing officer.

Reaching the station platform, Kirby espied the open door of the baggage room, closed the door and bolted it just as the leaders in the crowd reached it.

Police Rescued Him.
For a while the crowd contended itself with throwing bricks against the baggage room door, then a posse of patrolmen, summoned by the station agent, arrived and rescued Kirby. The crowd vanished with the arrival of the blue coats.

Outstanding developments yesterday included the arrest of Pearl Bahmer, 15 years old, who was with Schneider when the two bodies were found, as an incorrigible, and of Nicholas Bahmer, step father, held on a criminal charge preferred by the girl; and the intimation by one of the chief investigators that Hayes' arrest did not solve the mystery, that "in fact we've just started to work on the case."

Arthur Hullah of Temperance Hill had his tonsils removed today at the Dixon hospital.

GREAT AGGREGATION TO MEET DIXON TEAM
HERE NEXT SABBATH*Football Fans Assured of Classy Battle from Peru Team.

Dixon football fans are promised action aplenty when the Peru Independents invade the city Sunday, October 15, to furnish the opposition for the Legions at their home park. The game promises to develop some of the hardest football of the season, for word from the city to the south tells of a team coming to Dixon backed with a reputation earned in tough battling on the gridiron, battling that is fierce, but clean and sportsmanlike every minute of the fray.

Last season this Peru club registered victories over Mendota, Princeton and several other Illinois Valley cities. Their record for 1921 shows scoreless ties with La Salle and Springfield Valley and a decisive victory in a city championship engagement that attracted over 3,000 fans.

Has Plenty of Stars

Stars of last year's club are back with the aggregation this fall and added to this list are several newcomers in independent talents recruited from the ranks of the best professionals in the Illinois Valley. The club carries three quarterbacks, any one of them capable of stepping into the field's general job. This trio is LaFlamme, Brown and Moore. LaFlamme is a former high school star in La Salle-Peru, having taken over the job when the great Don Lourie left those parts to enter Princeton. And LaFlamme followed in the path of his great predecessor so successfully that his name has gone down among the foremost of the high school stars of the district. Brown is a veteran professional and gained considerable speed and experience with a championship naval team during the war. A queer coincidence lies in the fact that Moore, the third quarter, is also a World war veteran and gained his rep with an A. E. F. eleven.

Strong Back Field

The Independent backfield includes Gorgal, known as one of the best punters and passers in central Illinois; Schofield, a former Dixon high school player and now traveling a great pace with the professionals; Storey, Princeton star last season; Baker, one of the best backfield men in his district, and Fahey, a veteran who has earned respect from many a line.

The Independent line is constructed along a plan designed to combine speed and weight. Special attention is being given the defensive work of the club in the preparatory coaching, so that the Dixon backfield is promised some opposition worth while.

Negotiations were under way for a Peru-Dixon game last season, but this proved impossible. Recently contracts were signed for the game here next Sunday, however, and gridiron followers can now rest assured of one of the best attractions of the season on that date.

Praise of Orator
for K. C. Thackeray

Concerning Hon. Quin O'Brien, who will deliver the principal address at the Landing Day banquet and program to be given by Dixon Council Knights of Columbus at their hall tomorrow evening, to which the public is invited, Elbert Hubbard wrote: "To say that Hon. Quin O'Brien is one of the silver-tongued is true, bromidiad and also true. It is quite possible that there are not half a dozen public speakers with the linguistic skill and the phosphorescent purview that Mr. O'Brien possesses. He has the grace of an orator, the ease of manner, the bubbling wit and the intellectual challenge that command respect, admiration and love. Mr. O'Brien is the up-to-date model of American orator."

WHEN FRIENDS FALL OUTHISTORY OF REYNOLDS COMPANY WAS TOLD KIWANIAN AT LUNCH*President Reynolds in Interesting Address at Club Meeting.

A very interesting talk by H. G. Reynolds was given yesterday to the forty members of the Kiwanis club at their regular noon day luncheon. H. G. Reynolds said in part as follows: "We came to Dixon in 1894 after first opening the plant in Rock Falls in a part of the Lawrence Building. We offered to organize a company over there but learned that the citizenry of Sterling and Rock Falls would not come in unless they controlled fifty-one per cent of the stock. This we did not care to accept, with very small capital, in fact practically all the capital was invested in the looms. The loom weighing about two thousand pounds was hauled from Sterling by Joe Schnellbach with a team of mules. As Joe ran the 'Last Chance' in Dixon I thought as I walked beside that loom it was probably my last chance too.

There were times when things looked black, but the thought that only four or five plants existed in the country all situated in the east and operated by millionaires kept driving us on. These plants immediately started a war to wipe out the Reynolds plant, cutting the price on wire cloth from $1.30 for 100 square feet to $1.20, $1.00 and finally 80 cents. These people in the east spent between six and seven hundred thousand dollars to wipe a plant at that time not worth over $15,000. We had no representative from the east to confer with us. They even threatened to cut the price to 55 cents if we would not agree to stop increasing the capacity of our plant. I told them I would turn off the water power and pick up a wheelbarrow and earn enough to support my family, wife and two children until the price went back and then start again. This threat was in February and in two weeks' time wire cloth increased 25 cents and from that time on we have been treated as a competitor of the eastern plants."

H. G. Reynolds gave highest praise to Mr. Ayres of the Dixon National Bank. The courtesy shown him and the faith he had in the plant helped him over many seemingly stony roads. For eight years the Reynolds company could not get wire from the steel trust, the American Wire Cable Company from the east being clever enough to get one of the directors interested in their plant.

The business of the present plant was built up on quality alone and is rated as one of the best plants for fine wire drawing in the world. No difficulty is found in selling the entire output of the plant which is constantly increasing. With the new building two and one half times the present capacity of the drawing plant will be possible which in turn will increase the activity of the other departments. This building would have been started six or eight months sooner had it not been on account of the illness of H. G. Reynolds.

In closing, H. G. Reynolds stated that he was proud of Dixon, proud of the activity of the community and

ROCK ISLAND IS QUIET; MILITIA
MAY BE ON DUTY*Looney Reported to Have Cowboys to Avenge Murder.

Rock Island Ill., Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Comparative quiet prevails in Rock Island today following the series of crimes incited by the war between factions battling for control of the profits of the underworld. The federal government is said to have a force of agents conducting an investigation with a view to prosecution of underworld operators and officials alleged to have been in collusion in the promotion of violations of the liquor laws.

R. F. Rodenberg, an assistant attorney general of Illinois, has arrived to direct a grand jury investigation of the murder two months ago of William Gabel, a saloonkeeper, believed to have been slain because he had given incriminating evidence against officials and vice lords. No arrest has ever been made in the Gabel murder whereas there were scores arrested a few hours after John Looney, Jr., was slain last Friday. Looney was a son of John Looney owner of the News a sensational weekly that represented one of the factions that engaged in the Friday battle in which young Looney lost his life.

John Looney has threatened to avenge the death of his son and has intimated that a band of cowboys are being imported from New Mexico to assist him in his task. The attention of Governor Small has been called to the possibility of further outbreaks in the city and it is not improbable that state troops may be called to Rock Island, as they were several years ago, to clean up a condition that local authorities seem powerless to cope with.

O'Brien, pastor of an independent church in Zion City, today had completed with the terms of an offer from Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, when he played a game with a stranger in which four cards were used. A witness to the alleged game, according to his tale, explained the workings of the system, and the ragged stranger insisted that he be permitted to show his listeners. He produced four dirty cards, according to Mr. Johnson's story and induced the land agent to bet five dollars on the turn of a card. The agent bet and won and then turned the corner of the card to make it appear more simple. When the first bet was paid, the ragged stranger also gave Mr. Johnson a five dollar bill, although he had not bet.

CONFIDENCE GAME
TRIED ON PALMYRA FARMER; IS FAILURE*Two Strangers Tried to In-veigle Ralph Johnson in Game.

A ragged stranger who carried $40,000 in an old satchel, a supposedly aged land agent, and the time worn "three-card monte" game were introduced without success by two clever operators in an effort to secure large sums of money from Ralph Johnson, Palmyra farmer, according to reports that have been made to Chief Van Ribber of the local police department. Several days of effort were necessary on the part of the operators, which unsuccessful after the supposed victim was led to the snare it was planned to part him and his money or farms.

According to the story told at the police station, last Friday afternoon a dignified looking elderly man, neatly barbered, made his appearance at the Johnson farm home in Palmyra. He drove into the barn yard in a horse and buggy, which he claimed to have rented from a livery stable in Dixon. He represented himself to be a land agent and sought to enter into a deal with Mr. Johnson whereby he might secure one of the Johnson farms for his sister-in-law. He was informed that the farm was not for sale, but continued his quest, making calls almost daily.

Accomplice Appeared.
Yesterday forenoon, the land agent called at the Johnson home and asked Mr. Johnson to accompany him in the rig to look over a section of the farm. They drove north toward the Lincoln Highway when they were suddenly halted by an aged and ragged stranger, who carried a small grip and other packages. They stopped and the ragged stranger informed them that he had been in Sterling looking for John Rush, who had been recommended to him as being an honest man, and whom he was told, could be found in that vicinity.

The three conversed and the ragged stranger informed Mr. Johnson and the land agent that he had recently returned from Arizona, where he operated a gold mine. He displayed some nuggets which he claimed were taken from his claim and astounded his listeners when he imparted the information that he carried $40,000 in the small, dirty grip. He then told of his travels east and related how he had lost a large amount of money in Omaha, when he played a game with a stranger in which four cards were used. A witness to the alleged game, according to his tale, explained the workings of the system, and the ragged stranger insisted that he be permitted to show his listeners. He produced four dirty cards, according to Mr. Johnson's story and induced the land agent to bet five dollars on the turn of a card. The agent bet and won and then turned the corner of the card to make it appear more simple. When the first bet was paid, the ragged stranger also gave Mr. Johnson a five dollar bill, although he had not bet.

Suggested $5,000 Bet.
A wager of five thousand dollars was then suggested by the pedestrian, and this was taken by the supposed land agent. The cards were brought into play and again the land agent won. The ragged stranger opened the grip, removing two bundles of bills, marked $5,000 each, giving one to the agent and the other to Mr. Johnson.

At this point of the transaction the operator of the card trick inquired if either of the two men in the buggy could pay the bet should they have lost. The land agent produced a bill book from an inner coat pocket and proudly drew from it a draft for $50,000. Mr. Johnson replied that he could have paid, stating that he owned two good farms in Palmyra township. He then told the land agent that it was not fair to take the money from the stranger as he believed that he was demented and needed attention. The agent replied that it was easy money and there were no witnesses, but Mr. Johnson returned the money which had been handed to him and refused to have any further part in the game. The agent urged Mr. Johnson to come to the bank at Dixon and secure more money, then return and play the game. The ragged stranger was agreeable and promised to wait at the place until they returned. Johnson refused and went back home. The land agent agreed to come back this morning with his sister-in-law and her son, but the game did not work and nothing has been seen of the pair since.

Vegetable Market

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Oct. 11.—The car shortage has begun to have serious effects, according to indications shown in the weekly fruit and vegetable review of the federal bureau of agriculture economics issued today. Last week's shipments of fruit and vegetables decreased nearly 1000 cars from the preceding week and although the peak of the car shortage is usually not reached before the middle of October, the last week of September remains the record period for current season.

The total movement of 14 fruits and vegetables for the week ending Oct. 7, was 26,513 cars, or 400 less than the corresponding week last year.

Potato shipments were lighter with a fairly steady tone maintained and little price change, except a 15c advance in Chicago, although in several leading shipping sections sales were made at a lower range. Shipments were about 1400 cars below the total of the previous week. Minnesota led with 1158 cars shipped.

Grapes weakened under the heavy.

BOARD OF TRADE TO TEST FUTURE TRADING STATUTE

Suit to Be Started in Supreme Court of the Nation.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Oct. 11.—J. Ogden Armour, Joseph P. Griffin, and other leading figures in the world's grain trade, were called to testify today before the federal trade commission in its investigation of trading in futures.

With the hearing under way, the Chicago Board of Trade has launched an attack on the validity of the Capper-Tincher act which placed the regulation of grain exchanges in the hands of the Secretary of War.

Test of the validity of the future trading act will be made before the United States Supreme Court on the same grounds of which the court held the former Capper-Tincher law unconstitutional, according to Henry S. Robbins, attorney for the board.

Action in the former proceedings was taken individually by traders. In the ruling Chief Justice Taft stated that the suit should have been filed by the board itself, and in consequence directors of the board last night voted to wage the new contest as an official action in the name of the Board of Trade.

The new act was adopted to become effective November 1.

Intricate details of wheat trading are being unfolded to the commission in the sessions here by leading operators summoned to testify.

A $10,000,000 appropriation with which it could enter the market at any time was suggested by Arthur R. Roberts as the government's most effective means of stabilizing grain markets. With this perpetual fund to hold the market steady, wheat prices would remain between $1.25 and $1.50 constantly, he declared.

"Hedging and trading in wheat futures is being driven from Chicago to Winnipeg and Liverpool by the threat of the Capper-Tincher law," John R. Mauff, secretary of the Board of Trade told the federal trade commission today. If the new law is upheld by the supreme court, he added, buyers of cash grain who wish to "hedge" to protect themselves will be forced to go to a British market to deal in futures, he said.

Asks About Default.

Chairman Murdoch and members of the commission asked about a 2,050,000 bushel purchase made by a New York exporter named Field for May, 1921, delivery, on which Mr. Field complained he was unable to get delivery. The witnesses did not recall the deal, but the investigators read a report from the Board's file showing the seller had defaulted 195,000 bushels and that Mr. Field was forced to sell out 740,000 bushels and take July delivery instead, although he had already sold the entire May line abroad.

Examiners for the commission questioned the witness about the connection of Professor James E. Boyle of Cornell University, with the Board of Trade. From the board's minutes the examiners said it appeared that Professor Boyle had been employed by the promotion department of the board in 1919 at a salary of $500 a month to write a book about the grain market.

The examiners produced a book by Professor Boyle entitled "Speculation and the Chicago Board of Trade," published in 1919 by a New York publishing house, but the secretary said he knew nothing about Boyle's connection with the board, or whether he had been paid to write the book.

"Hedging's" Advantages.

Returning to the question of "hedging," Mr. Mauff said it had definite advantage, and pointed to the fact that an eight cent margin is required in the barley pit, where there is no future trading, while corn is handled on a one cent margin and wheat and oats on a two-cent margin.

The Department of Agriculture, under Secretary James Wilson, persuaded farmers to increase the barley crop from 50,000,000 bushels in 1900 to 200,000,000 bushels at the present, Mr. Mauff said, and then the Volstead Law came along and ruined the barley demand, destroying the brewers' business. As a result, he said, barley has been thrown into competition with oats and corn. Part of the trouble in those markets is due to the surplus barley crop, he said.

Joseph P. Griffin, former president of the Board, who followed Mr. Mauff, said the decline in the price of wheat in the summer and fall of 1920, following the resumption of future trading, was not due to the reopening of the hedging market, but was coincidental with the deflation in all other lines.

Barber Supply Men Make Bum Real Beau Brummell; Got Job

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Oct. 11.—A wandering, jobless, ragged "bum" yesterday, a neat, immaculate model of luxury with an income today, is the story of the transfiguration of "Little Bill" Hayes.

The "little" of West Madison Street became the "Beau Brummell" of the white lights in a few short hours, all because the Barbers' Supply Dealers Association of America wanted to demonstrate how quickly face cream, lotions, shampoo, toilet waters and nail polish can change appearances.

Emissaries were sent out to rake the floozies of the "Pop" houses for the worst looking specimen of humanity drift that they could find. They came back with "Little Bill."

In the convention rooms, Bill was turned over to barbers and manicurists and while they performed their magic, new clothes and shoes were substituted for Bill's rags, which were thrown in the alley.

Two hours later William Hayes stepped into the bright lights of a downtown restaurant, the honored guest of men whose fortunes are in cosmetics and perfume. Hayes handled himself and his knife and fork in a manner which—well, Frank Berling, manager of the restaurant, thought Bill would be a pretty good man to keep around the place.

TURKS ACCEPTED ALL OF ALLIED NATONS' TERMS

BULLETIN

London, Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Former Premier Venizelos of Greece will act as the chief plenipotentiary for Greece at the first peace conference of representatives of Greece and Turkey and the allied powers, it was announced here today. The place and date of this conference have not yet been determined.

Mudania, Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press)—The armistice convention signed by the representatives of the Turkish nationalists and the allied powers here late last night, contains the exact terms as submitted by Lieutenant General Harrington, the British delegate.

Ismet Pasha, the Turkish representative, held out for a larger number of gendarmes in eastern Thrace and argued long on several other points but eventually gave way on every point of the allied demands.

General Harrington and General Charpy, the latter the French delegate, left for Constantinople this morning.

Rodosto, Thrace, Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Five thousand Turkish nationalist soldiers in civilian attire have filtered into eastern Thrace during the last fortnight through this city and other ports on the Sea of Marmora for the purpose of facilitating the Turkish occupation of the province according to information received by the allied mission here.

The Kemalists soldiers have mostly come in with groups of refugees, making their detection difficult. The local Greeks declare the object of this infiltration is to foment disturbances, organize bands of irregulars and gather information for reprisals against the Greeks.

Rome, Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press)—A strong earthquake shook this city today, causing great alarm among the population. No damage, however, had been reported up to 1 o'clock this afternoon.

IOWA CRIPPLED AS TEAM STARTS FOR NEW HAVEN

Several of Hawkeye's Aggregation Out of Battle.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Oct. 11.—If Big Ten football teams are destined to play in the mud next Saturday the weather thus far this week has given them plenty of opportunity to accustom themselves to a slippery ball and soggy footing.

Rains which have been general throughout the western conference have compelled the teams to resort to anti-skid practice. Downpours failed to stop regular drills during the first part of the week.

Injuries dampened prospects at some camps more than the weather. This was especially so at Iowa today as the Hawkeyes pulled stakes to enjoin for New Haven, where Jones meets Jones in the intersectional clash between Iowa and Yale on Saturday.

Iowa is Crippled.

Howard Jones, the Hawkeye coach, may have to revise some of the tactics he has worked out when he sends his eleven against brother "Tad Jones' bulldogs. John Heldt, star center for Iowa, was suffering from acute attack of lumbago; Parkin first string quarterback, has a bad knee and Fuelback Locke wrenched his back in scrimmage yesterday.

While several squads had hospital lists that were all too long, Indiana, in preparing for the Minnesota game, was fortunate in having only two regulars among the cripples—France and Howard, both linemen. The condition of the men was the source of considerable gratification to the Hoosier coaches, who expect a tough battle with the Gophers.

Maroons vs. Purple.

While the Minnesota eleven showed the need of considerable improvement in their attack, they put up a strong defense against Indiana plays, exemplified by the scrubs in scrimmage.

The Maroons and Purple have been splashing and skidding through the mud every day this week in preparation for the annual Chicago-Northwestern teams of the Big Ten play non-conference eleven Saturday.

Aged Man is Near Death from Attack

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Keokuk, Iowa, Oct. 11.—Adam Wahner, living near Farmington, is in a hospital here near death from wounds sustained Monday night when he was attacked and struck over the head with a black jack. Physicians said his skull is fractured and that he probably will die.

According to Carl Wahner, a brother, the aged man was attacked as he was about to lock his chickens up for the night. His hands and legs were tied and he was struck over the head. He was found four hours later.

County authorities are of the opinion that robbery was the motive for the attack.

COLUMBUS—

(By Joaquin Miller.)
Behind him lay the gray Azores,
Behind the Gates of Hercules;
Before him not the ghost of shores;
Before him only shoreless seas.
The good mate said: "Now must we pray,
For lo! the very stars are gone.
Brave Adm'r! speak; what shall I say?"
"Why, say: Sail on! sail on! sail on!"

"My men grow mutinous day by day;
My men grow ghastly wan and weak."
The stout mate thought of home! a spray
Of salt wave washed his swarthy cheek.

"What shall I say, brave Adm'r! say,
If we see naught but seas at dawn?"
"Why, you shall say at break of day:
'Sail on! sail on! sail on! sail on!'"

They sailed and sailed, as winds might blow,
Until at last the blanched mate said:
"Why, now not even God would know
Should I and my men fall dead.
These very winds forget their way,
For God from these dread seas is gone.
Now speak, brave Adm'r! speak and say—"

He said: "Sail on! sail on! sail on!"
They sailed. They sailed. Then spake the mate:
"This mad sea shows his teeth to-night."

He curls his lip, he lies in wait,
With lifted teeth, as if to bite!
Brave Adm'r! say but one good word:
What shall we do when hope is gone?"
The word leapt like a leaping sword:
"Sail on! sail on! sail on! sail on!"

Then, pale and worn, he kept his deck,
And peered through darkness, Ah,
That night.

Of all dark nights! And then a speck—
A light! A light! A light! A light!
It grew, a starlit flag unfurled!
It grew to be Times burst of dawn.
He gained a world; he gave that world
Its grandest lesson: "On! sail on!"

I also had pains throughout my back and kidneys which were very annoying. I read a lot about Doan's Kidney Pills and the good they had done for others, so I started to use them. They were just the remedy my bladder and kidneys needed to check the trouble. I use Doan's now when I feel any of the old complaints and they relieve me in the same sure way."

Instant Quaker Oats
Cooks to perfection in 3 to 5 minutes

The Only Oats That cook in five minutes

Now Quaker Oats hold supreme place, the world over, in two important ways.

They are the finest-flavored oats in existence. They are flaked from queen grains only—just the rich, plump, flavory oats. We get but ten pounds of such flakes from a bushel.

For many a year, oat lovers the world over have sent for Quaker Oats because of that matchless flavor. Those who know it will not go without it.

Now an Instant Style

Now that same flavor, that same quality, come in an Instant style.

Instant Quaker Oats cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and it cooks to perfection. It is by far the quickest-cooking oats in the world.

In Instant style the oats are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and are partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And those small, thin flakes cook quickly.

Get Quaker Oats always, in fairness to yourself. This is the food of foods—the greatest food that grows. You want the dish delightful.

But tell your grocer which style you want, the Instant or the regular. He has both, and the price is the same for either.

GONE FOREVER

Enough gasoline to run a Ford car 1,440,000 miles is wasted each year in America through preventable evaporation in storage tanks. So announce Johns-Manville engineers, working with the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

It seems like a big waste. It is.
But America is a land of waste.
The old saying, that the food we throw into our garbage pails would feed Europe, is not far from correct.

However, like other people, most of us are reasonably economical. We turn the carpet to distribute bleaching by the sunlight instead of letting the fading concentrate on one end.
We make the remains of the roast into hash. We mend and patch. And, too, most of us save an atticle of stuff that "might come in handy"— but never does.

The big waste in America cannot be prevented by the people. The job is up to inventors and engineering experts.

A ton of coal leaves the mine with 23,000,000 British thermal (heat) units locked up in it. But only 1,014,000 of these heat units are actually converted into mechanical energy. The rest is wasted—lost in transit, up the chimney or carried away by the ashman.

You could fry an egg in a twinkling by holding the "spider" over the top of the average chimney. No one has ever been able to figure out how to save that wasted heat. Eventually some one will. The solution may be in putting a hot water tank a few inches above the chimney top, or water pipes crosswise in the chimney.

Slag in the steel industry used to be wasted, piled up in small mountains. Now it is ground up and used as a surfacing for bricks.

Time was, in the oil country, in the days of kerosene oil lamps, when men around refineries washed their overalls in a tub of gasoline and then dumped the "gas" out. The fellows who invented gasoline engines and autos stopped that sort of waste by finding a use for gasoline.

The profits of many big corporations today are largely in such economies as these.

More opportunities for bright minds, in the stopping of waste, than any other field.

HE LIFTS A TON

A phenomenally strong man is discovered working in a steel mill at Youngstown, O. He is Gus Lessis, 22, a Greek.

Gus first attracts attention by absent-mindedly picking up a one-ton steel beam and carrying it up a flight of stairs. This, of course, nearly shuts down the mill.

Crowds gather about Gus. He entertains them by bending an iron bar three-quarters of an inch in diameter, around his neck like a cork-seal, then unwinding it.

Barnum once said, "If you have anything worth showing, get it under canvas."

So Gus takes the road and charges admission.

Without straining himself, Gus could pick up a ton of coal, wagon and all. You wonder what he looks like? Well, he weighs only 155.

Compared with size, he is a weakling alongside an ant.

Nevertheless, he is one of the strongest men in the world.

His strength was not acquired in gymnasiums. He says he inherited it. That, however, is only partly correct. When a human body weighing 185 pounds easily lifts 13 times its weight, a good part of that strength is in the will power.

You have had this experience: You try to lift a heavy weight, strain every muscle into action, but cannot budge it.

That makes you mad. Anger arouses the will power. You lift again. The weight rises clear of the ground. Muscles are like the wires that carry electric current. The real power is in the mind. It is will power. A weakling suddenly gone insane, could literally the Gus Lessis in a knot. In asylums, four or more powerful men frequently are required to subdue a fiail woman in a maniacal frenzy. Weak muscles, strong will power.

Whether lifting weights, accomplishing hard tasks or conquering obstacles, will power is your greatest force. It lies dormant in most brains a sleeping giant waiting to be roused.
Confidence alone can rouse it.

That's why confidence in self is the skeleton key that opens the doors of success. Also why the man of apparently small ability so often "bluffs" his way through.

Failure is never more than a temporary setback until the will power retreats in dismay and admits defeat.

HEREAFTER

More than a million soldiers fought for the south during the Civil War.
All except 75,066 of them are dead, reports General Julian S. Carr, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans.

News like this startlingly reminds us that we are all traveling to the cemetery. If everybody kept this grim fact in mind, and acted accordingly, there would be less mischief and blazen devilry. Our stop-over on earth is brief, yet many of us are as ruthless as if we were here for all eternity.

FORD

In Detroit, consumers pay $15 a ton retail for coke. The price is $8 a ton to men working for Henry Ford.
He makes his own coke and sells it wholesale to his employees.

This is as good as a wage bonus.
Large employers will find a highly profitable field in co-operative buying for those on their payrolls. Helping the employee get more for his dollar is the next best thing to giving him more dollars.

standing at the rear window of his
New York fur shop?

Doug Fairbanks doubts that it was his arrow, but admits that he had bin Hood."

This is about zero in happenings.
Still, it gets attention and millions are more interested in it than in Mustapha Kemal. It may be just as important, too, a few hundred years from now.

BRINGING UP FATHER

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

(75)

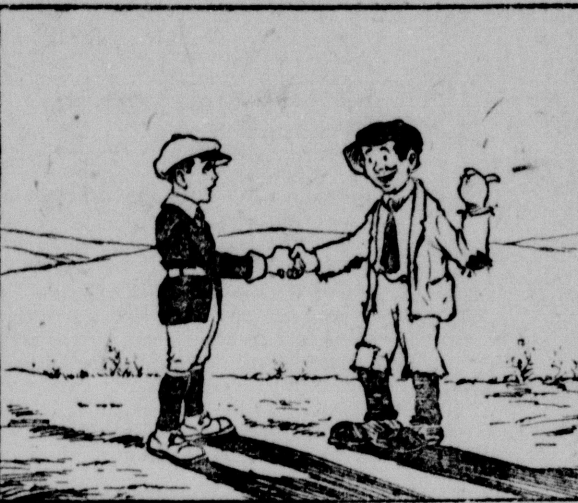

BY ELTON

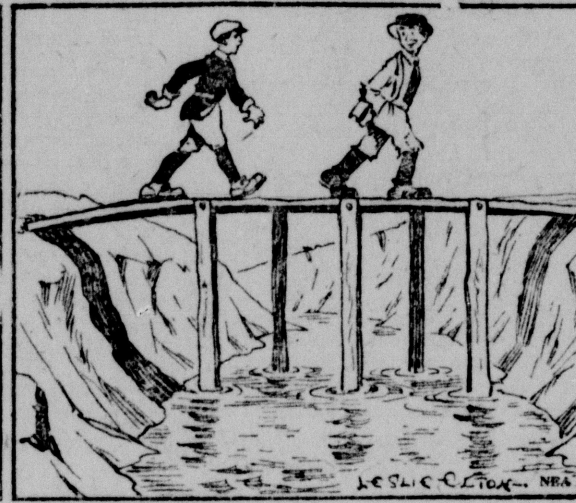

Jack Daw, adventurer, halted at a farm house to get a bite to eat. The kind farmer's wife sold him some sandwiches and then he hopped on his horse's back and started down the road.

A short distance away he jumped to the ground again and turned his horse. Lightning, loose to eat in the fields. In the meantime Jack noticed a boy coming toward him.

As a ragged-looking youth walked up, Jack said
"Hello, stranger." The youth shook hands and replied "Hello, Willie." and then he invited Jack down the road to meet another boy.

"My name is Bill Dugan and my buddy's name is Stony McGlynn," said the youth as he led Jack across a bridge. "Maybe Stony will let you join our gang." Continued.

COMET-LEGS ASKED TO GIVE AID

My, how he did storm up and down.

Twelve Toes, the Sorcerer, was bean-stalk, but the apple tree fairy furious when Light Fingers returned without the Fairy Queen's automobile. Just furious.

My, how he did storm up and down with rage and stamp his foot and tear his hair and bite his nails and gnash his teeth!

Poor Light Fingers, the bad little fairy who worked for him, didn't know where to look. He had done the best he could.

It wasn't his fault that, just at the very minute he was going to scatter the tacks on the road in front of the magic automobile that Nancy and Nick were taking to the Fairy Queen, someone grabbed him by the collar and stooped him.

"I'll try again," he said when Twelve Toes got over his rage.

"Very well," said the Sorcerer.
"I'll whistle for Comet-Legs to come and give us some good advice."

So he put two fingers in his mouth and whistled like a fire whistle, and pretty soon there was a whizzing in the air.

Comet-Legs appeared, his crooked legs wrapped around the star he always rode.

He tied his star to the top of a tree and climbed down.

"What's wrong?" he asked when he had shaken hands with Twelve Toes, the Sorcerer, and Light Fingers, the bad little fairy. "What can I do for you?"

Twelve Toes answered.
"Light Fingers here stole the Fairy Queen's automobile for me, and then the Twins, Nancy and Nick, got it back. I sent Light Fingers back for it by way of a magic Philadelphia headline. Things are quiet in Philadelphia."

WINNERS

By Berton Braley

THE folks we call "Successes"; what's the secret that they know?
What sort of magic food is it that makes them flourish so?
There isn't any secret which you cannot figure out,
Nor any strange enchantment which is ringing them about;
For when you come to study them the answer's quickly guessed.
They worked a little harder and they planned a little better
And they dreamed a little truer
Than the rest.

THEY weren't afraid of drudgery when drudgery was wanted,
They faced the little grimy jobs with spirit quite undaunted,
They didn't like that sort of task, they didn't find it fun,
But they kept grinding at it till they knew that it was done;
And thus their strength and courage grew to meet each larger test,
They plugged a little harder, and they toiled a little longer,
And they thought a little clearer
Than the rest.

A LITTLE more of effort and a little more of stress
Would often alter failure into glorious success,
But the failure blames misfortune for his lack of fame and pelf,
He blames the times, he blames his job—but never blames himself;
Yet the secret of the folks who win is easily expressed,
They fight a little harder, and they act a little quicker,
And they stick a little longer
Than the rest.

NEW COW TESTING ASSN. ORGANIZED IN SO. LEE COUNTY

Officers Elected and Tester Engaged and is on the Job.

Leading dairymen in the vicinities of Amboy, West Brooklyn and Harmon have organized "The Lee County Cow Testing Association." This is one of many similar associations in Illinois, Wisconsin and probably all of the dairy states, its purpose being to improve the dairy herds and increase the profit from them by means of production and cost records.

The Association employs a tester who visits each member once a month and makes a record of each individual cow in his herd showing the weight of milk given, the percentage of butter fat, the total weight of butter fat, the value of the product, the cost of feed consumed, and the profit and loss over feed cost.

Such a record telling what each cow is doing makes it possible for the farmer to cull out his unprofitable cows and to breed up a better herd from his higher producers. Another very important object is that by studying these records the farmer can determine the kinds and amount of feed to give each cow in order to obtain the most net profit.

Acker Is Tester

The tester employed in this association is Walter E. Acker of West Brooklyn. Mr. Acker has studied two years at Mt. Morris College and has had experience in cow testing association work through which he has gained excellent recommendations for this position. He is already at work in the Lee County Association, having begun the testing on October 1st of the Green herd.

At the first meeting of the testing association which was held at the Farm Bureau Office, officers were elected as follows: President, G. P. Finch; Vice President, Holly Smith; Secretary-Treasurer, W. A. Green. Other members of the executive committee are Frank Apple, Harry Lally, S. M. Shaw and Louis Gehant.

The present membership consists of the following: Holly Smith, J. A. Tait, Shaw & Seltz, D. T. Fitzpatrick, Joe Nicholson, G. P. Finch, R. J. Atkinson, Carl Sartorius, Albert C. Antoine, Lee E. North, Green & Vaughn, Lyons & Brooks, Mrs. E. J. Lally, James Thompson, Mrs. Rose Morrissey, Sherman M. Shaw, John J. Acker, Frank Apple, Theo. Schulte, Fred Schulte.

This membership covers a territory having its center in Amboy and extending from West Brooklyn to Harmon. There is still an opportunity for three more dairymen to join the association before the limit of 25 members is reached.

Records From U. of I.

Record books and supplies are furnished by the University of Illinois under whose supervision the testing associations are operated. The test reports are sent to the University each month.

The next business meeting will be held at the Farm Bureau office Friday evening, October 27. Program committees are to be appointed for each monthly meeting to arrange instructive and entertaining programs. This association should be an active factor in developing this territory into a progressive dairy territory.

TWO NO-HIT GAMES IN MAJOR LEAGUES DURING PAST YEAR

Jess Barnes and Charley Robertson Entered Hall of Fame.

New York, Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two no-hits games, the seventh and eighth in the history of the major leagues, were the pitching features in 1922 baseball, a season marked by heavy and continuous hitting, according to semi-official figures. Charlie Robertson of the Chicago White Sox, sprang from a rookie's lowly estate to baseball fame by turning back the Detroit Tigers without a hit on April 30 and Jess Barnes, the New York Giant's veteran, entered the hall of fame May 7, a week later, by pitching almost perfect ball against the Philadelphia Quakers.

Robertson also added to his laurels by pitching a two-hit game on June 13 against the Boston Red Sox. There were two one-hit games in National League and none in the American, thirteen two-hit games in the National and sixteen three-hit contests in the American compared to thirteen in the National.

Doak Starred Twice.

Bill Doak, of the St. Louis Cardinals, twirled both the one-hit games, the first on May 11, against the Giants and the second on July 13, against the Philadelphia Quakers.

Urban Faber of the Chicago White Sox and Stanley Coveleskie of the Cleveland Indians, each pitched three three-hit games and Vangilder of the Browns finished two three-hit games in the American's total of sixteen. Urban Shoker, another Brown star, finished one three-hit game himself and worked in another with Pitcher Bayne. Jack Quinn, of the Red Sox, and Robertson of the White Sox, the only man in the American League to pitch both a three-hit and two-hit game.

The other three-hit pitchers in the American League were: Leverette, White Sox; Stoner, Tigers; Collins, Red Sox and Harris, Athletics.

Other two-hit pitchers in the American League are Bayne, of St. Louis; Robertson, White Sox; Quinn and Penneck of the Red Sox; Mays and Jones, of the Yankees; Erickson of the Senators, and Uhle, of the Indians.

JILTED BEAUTY WILL FIGHT TO ASCERTAIN NAMES OF SLANDERERS

information that she had invited two men to visit her rooms in a local hotel during the Confederate reunion here in 1919.

Wants to Know Names

"Mr. Candler shall tell to the world that the slander of unforgotten news is the reason he cast off the woman whom he asked to be his wife," she reiterated today. "He must disclose the slanderers of my character; tell me and the world that women are not always fortune hunters—that heritage of pride does not succumb to material desires. This shall be done."

Mrs. De Bouchel whose announcement of her engagement to Candler several months ago attracted national attention, is typical of the French type. She is wealthy and is said to have descended on both sides of her family from the French aristocracy. When she attended the Confederate reunion in Atlanta as chaperon-general, she related, Candler entertained the ladies of her court, sent them candy and flowers, placed his automobile at their disposal and otherwise "acted as any gentleman would."

Claims He Wrote to Her

After she had returned to her home in New Orleans, a correspondence developed, she continued. The capitalist told her "how his daughter before her marriage had always met him at the door and placed her arms around his neck; but that how it was 'Hello Father' as she passed him."

Herself lonely and susceptible to the idea of a union based not on love, but upon a "companionship" idea, their ideas grew gradually together, she said. The Louisiana woman took a trip to Switzerland and on her return, Candler met her at the pier in New York, she said.

"Those rugged elements of his character, which enabled him to rise from a comparatively low station in life to the height of financial standing attracted and fascinated me.

Considered Him Ideal

"While he did not have a background of generations of courtly refinement, he possessed all the elements of a gentleman. He was, I thought, the ideal type—considerate and solicitous of my welfare."

"The most outstanding ruin of the debacle which confronts me today."

she continued after a pause, "It is that the strong, masterful personality is plastic, moulded into shape by the will of others. And the worst of all is his lack of faith in me."

"That he could be made to believe in the face of my proof the slanders; that I should be condemned without a hearing—these things have seared into my soul. And from this wound has risen the determination that the honored name of my ancestors shall not be blackened without defense, even though there is only a woman here to bear the sword."

Was Left an Orphan

Left an orphan early in childhood in New Orleans, where she was born, Mrs. De Bouchel finished her education at Notre Dame in Canada. She then returned to New Orleans as a reigning beauty.

After a marriage, when ended unhappily, she became convinced that the "young man is incapable of fidelity to his marriage vows," she said, adding that she became "a man hater" until her engagement to Candler occurred.

Until she has conferred with her attorney, whom she expected to arrive during the day, Mrs. De Bouchel said she would be unable to say what court action, if any, would be taken.

Candler's only reply to her published statement was issued through his attorneys after he was said to have left Atlanta yesterday. He asserted that confidential information given him by friends had made a marriage with Mrs. De Bouchel impossible, and that he would not disclose the names of his informants.

The Standardized Store

BEGIN HERE TODAY

That priceless gem, the Flaming Jewel, had first been stolen from the QUINTESS of ESTHONIA by the international thief.

QUINTANA. Love of the now bearded countess caused

JAMES DARRACH to trace the gem to the disreputable cann in the Adirondacks owned by MIKE CLINCH, who has stolen the Flaming Jewel from Quintana.

Under the name of

HAL SMITH, Darrach works at Clinch's dump, where he meets

EVE STRAYER, the one good influence in the crime-stained career of Clinch.

When Quintana and his gang arrive to regain the jewel, Clinch seeks to conceal it by giving it to Eve and telling her to hide it in the "hook-catche."

Quintana and his gang capture Eve and lead her blindfolded to their camp.

Go on With the Story

SOMEONE had halted beside Eve. After a pause she was aware of nimble fingers busy with the bandage over her eyes.

At first, when freed, the light blinded her. By degrees she was able to distinguish the rocky crest of Star Peak, with the tops of tall trees appearing level with the rocks from depths below.

Then she turned, slowly, and looked at the man who had seated himself beside her.

He wore a white mask over a delicate, smoothly shaven face.

As she met his brilliant eyes behind the mask, his delicate, thin lips grew tense in what seemed to be a smile—or a soundless sort of laugh.

"Veree happee," he said, "to make the acquaintance. Pardon my uncertainty, miss, but onlee neccesitate compels. Are you, perhaps, a little rested?"

"Yes."

"Ah! Then, if you permit, we proceed with affairs of moment. You will be sufficiently kind to write down what I say. Yes?"

He placed paper and pencil in Eve's hand. Without demurring or hesitation she made ready to write, her mind groping wildly for the reason of it all.

"Write," he said, with his silent laugh which was more like the soundless snarl of a lynx unafraid.

"To Mike Clinch, my tathaire, from his child, Eve. I am hostage, held by Jose Quintana. Pay what you owe him and I go free."

"For each day delay he sends to you one finger which will be severed from my right hand."

Eve's slender fingers trembled; she looked up at the masked man, stared steadily into his brilliant eyes.

"Proceed, miss, if you are so amiable," he said softly.

She wrote on: "One finger for every day's delay. The whole hand at the week's end. The other hand then, finger by finger. Then, alas! the right foot—"

Eve trembled.

"Proceed," he said softly.

She wrote: "If you agree you shall pay what you owe to Jose Quintana in this manner: you shall place a stick at the edge of the Star Pond where the Star rivulet flows out. Upon this stick you shall tie a white rag. At the foot of the stick you shall lay the parcel which contains your indent to Jose Quintana."

"Falling this, by tonight one finger at sunset."

The man paused. Eve waited, dumb under the surging confusion in her brain. A sort of incredulous horror benumbed her, through which she still heard and perceived.

"Well," said Quintana, a thin, strident edge to his tone.

"My father is mistaken. I haven't any packet."

The man's visage behind his mask flushed darkly. Without warning or ceremony he caught Eve by the throat and tore open her shirt. Then, hissing and cursing and panting with his own violence, he searched her brutally and without mercy—flung her down and tore off her spiral puttees and even her shoes and stockings, now apparently beside himself with fury, puffing, gasping, always with a fierce, nasal sort of whining undertone like an animal worrying its kill.

"Cowardly beast!" she panted, fighting him with all her strength—"filthy, cowardly beast!" striking at him, wrenching his grasp away, snatching at the disordered clothing half stripped from her.

His hunting knife fell clattering and she fought to get it, but he struck her with his open hand, knocking her down at his feet, and stood glaring at her with every tooth bared.

"So," he cried, "I give you ten minutes, make up your mind, tell me what you do with that packet."

He wiped the blood from his face where she had struck him.

"You don't know Jose Quintana. Not you shall make his acquaintance. Yes?"

Eve got up on naked feet, quivering from head to foot, striving to button the gray shirt at her throat.

"Where?" he demanded, beside himself.

Her mute lips only tightened.

"Ver' well, by God!" he cried, "I go make me some fire. You like it, eh? We shall put one toe in the fire until it burn off. Yes? Eh? How you like it? Eh?"

The girl's trembling hands continued busy with her clothing.

"So!" he said, hoarsely, "you remain dumb! Well, then, in ten minutes you shall talk!"

He walked toward her, pushed her savagely aside, and strode on into the spruce thicket.

The instant he disappeared Eve caught up the knife he had dropped, knelt down on the blanket and fell to cutting it into strips.

The hunting knife was like a razor; the feverish business was accomplished in a few moments, the pieces knotted, the cord strained in a desperate test over her knee.

And now she ran to the precipice where, ten feet below, the top of a great pine protruded from the gulf.

On the edge of the abyss was a spruce root. It looked dead, wedged deep between two rocks; but with all her strength she could not pull it out.

Sobbing, breathless, she tied her blanket rope to this, threw the other end over the cliff's edge, and, not giving herself time to think, lay flat, grasped the knotted line, swung off.

Not by knot she went down. Half-way her naked feet brushed the needles, she looked over her shoulder, behind and down. Then, teeth clenched, she lowered herself steadily as she had learned to do in the school gymnasium, down, down, until her legs came astride of a pine limb.

It bent, swayed, gave with her, letting her sag to a larger limb below. "This she clasped, letting go her rope.

An hour later, Trooper Stormont of the State Constabulary, sat his horse in amazement to see a ragged, breathless, boyish figure speeding toward him among the tamaracks, her naked feet splashing through pool and mire and sphagnum.

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed as she flung herself against his stirrup, sobbing, hysterical, and clinging to his knee.

"Take me back," she stammered.

"—take me back to daddy! I can't—go on—another step—"

He leaned down, swung her up to his saddle in front, holding her cradled in his arms.

"Lie still," he said coolly; "you're all right now."

For another second he sat looking down at her, at the disheveled hair, the gasping mouth—at the ragged clothing her, and at the flat packet clasped convulsively to her breast.

Then he spoke in a low voice to his horse, guiding left with one knee.

Need of "Safety-First" is Stressed By Steel Co. Head

New York, Oct. 10.—The need for "safety first" in every human activity where physical injury may be preventable was outlined by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, in an address on public safety to the Merchants' Association of New York today.

The number of serious preventable accidents every day in this country are appalling, he said. Because of additions in population and congestion in movement the number is increasing, he asserted, notwithstanding much that has been done to prevent accidents. He advocated painting on lamp posts and pavements at street corners "beware of accidents" or other warnings to all who are exposed to danger, and urged that every means of prevention of accidents be adopted.

Large industrial institutions had proved, he said, that the number of industrial accidents could be reduced by precautionary measures. Contributions of time and money to the prevention of injury should be made as well as to the maintenance of ambulances, hospitals, etc., for the care of the injured.

He praised the work of the Safety Institute of America in the campaign to arouse the public to the necessity of protection against accidents and said that it is rendering a splendid service for humanity.

Crusaders and teachers are needed, he said, to advocate unceasingly the necessity for presence of mind and a desire to avoid and to prevent accident and injury to themselves and others.

"Crank Proposal" of Daugherty on Dry Law Discussed

London, Oct. 10.—(By the Associated Press.)—The London morning newspapers which hitherto have given little prominence to the ruling of Attorney General Daugherty in Washington prohibiting liquor on vessels within American waters, devoted considerable space to it today, printing interviews with ship men, reports of the general feeling in the shipping trade, details of liquor sales aboard liners, and speculations on changing the ports of destination in the event the ruling is upheld and enforced.

It is stated that a meeting of the members of the North Atlantic Conference will be held in London this week at which the whole question will be discussed.

The interviews published by the newspapers confirm the general attitude previously ascribed to the British shipping companies—that is: "We shall say nothing and do nothing."

In some quarters there is amused incredulity at the "crank proposal" as it is called, and belief is declared that it is likely to be soon dropped when the Americans realize they will be the chief losers, as British liners undoubtedly will transfer their sailings to Canadian ports.

Chicago underworld in a decade, yesterday lost a fight in the United States Supreme Court to have set aside the Illinois statute, under which convicted persons may be sent to the penitentiary for an indeterminate sentence.

He maintained that this statute was unconstitutional on the ground that under its provisions one person may receive a greater punishment than another for a similar offense and that the fourteenth amendment provides that no state shall deny any citizen equal protection of the law.

Stevens was sentenced under the Illinois law to the Joliet penitentiary for shooting Lester Wedemeyer, an Aurora patrolman the night of October 30, 1918. The same gunman who shot him, killed his partner, Detective Alfred Olin, Wedemeyer said, but Stevens was acquitted of the murder in a trial that preceded the one for the shooting of Wedemeyer. Trials were by Kane county juries.

Stevens is now out on $15,000 bail furnished by a surety company.

Had Saw Jack Scott Twirl Self to Fame

New York, Oct. 10.—Among those who saw Jack Scott twirl himself into the World's Series hall of fame by blanking the Yankees with four hits in the third contest at the Polo Grounds was the pitcher's aged father. His presence at the game, after a trip from his home in Ridge-way, N. C., was revealed today by John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants.

Sitting unnoticed in the grand stand, the elder Scott watched with tense interest as his boy mowed down the Yankees and pulled himself out of a hole in the seventh inning when the Huguenot got runners on second and third with but one out.

"My boy won that game and I knew he'd do it," he declared proudly, as he stood erect after the last Yankee had been retired.

"His presence there gave me a real thrill," said McGraw. "I could see in the father the will and determination of the son to fight his way back, when it looked as if his major league days were over. The spirit wins many a ball game."

STATUE OF FIELD.

YOUTH HELD UNDER MURDER CHARGE AS BAIL IS DENIED HIM

Young Hall Pleaded Not Guilty to Charge When Arraigned.

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 10.—(By the Associated Press).—Nineteen-year-old Clifford Hayes of New Brunswick today pleaded not guilty of slaying the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, and was held by Justice of the Peace Snippen without bail for grand jury action.

Authorities, who announced with a show of confidence on Hayes' arrest yesterday that the Hall-Mills mystery had been solved, evinced less satisfaction with their case today.

One of the investigators said "plans were being worked out, which would change the entire complexion of the case." This lead, he added, pointed away from young Hayes and appears to provide a motive that would explain the mad slaying of Mrs. Mills' throat in addition to the bullet wounds.

Raymond Schneider, on whose accusation Hayes was arrested, still was held today as a material witness and was being questioned from time to time in an effort to clear up discrepancies in his story as compared with facts established from other sources.

Harris Counter Charge.

Schneider said Hayes had shot the minister and the choir singer under the apple tree on the old Phillips Farm, thinking the pair to be Pearl Bahmer, 15, and her step father, Nicholas Bahmer. Schneider admitted that he himself was in love with the girl and declared that Hayes had acted as avenger of a wrong Schneider believed had been done himself by the girl's step father.

Hayes denied the story vehemently, hurling a counter accusation that Schneider had robbed the dead minister's body of a gold watch and seeking to divert suspicion from himself. Schneider charged that Hayes stole the watch.

Schneider said he could not account for the cutting of Mrs. Mills' throat, the scattering about of love letters written to Mr. Hall by the choir singer, nor the placing of one of the minister's cards against the sole of his shoe. They fled the scene, according to his story as soon as they discovered that Hayes had shot the wrong persons.
